

Obituary Disclosed as Hoax

An obituary in The New York Times on Wednesday reported incorrectly that Alan Abel was dead. Mr. Abel held a news conference yesterday to announce that the obituary was a result of a hoax he had arranged to gain publicity. He described himself as a professional hoaxer and said that about 12 accomplices had been involved in the deception.

The New York Times

Published: January 4, 1980

Copyright © The New York Times